Last weekend the North American Beer Brewers Association announced the 2019 winners of NABA (North American Beer Awards), a national competition known to be one of the largest and most competitive in the country. In 2018, over 1,900 beverages were entered into the competition (which includes cider, mead and soda, in addition to beer.)

In this, it's 23rd year, the NABA awarded 12 medals to 10 Barrel Brewing between their Bend, Boise and Portland breweries.

However, Breakside Brewery won the most medals out of a single brewing location with 10 from their Milwaukie, OR production facility.

Barley Browns Brewpub won 8 medals and Bend Brewing won 5 medals. pFriem Family Brewers followed up with 5 medals. Worthy Brewing claimed 3 medals and quite a few other Oregon brewers took home a medal or two.

Von Ebert Brewing only took home one medal, but it was a biggie: Gold Medal in the American-Style IPA category for Volatile Substance.

Seattle's Reuben's Brews continued their ascension, after recently expanding into a new brewery they have 5 new medals to fill the walls.

Bellingham, Washington helped prove how great of a small beer city it is by winning 13 medals between four breweries. Chuckanut Brewery, Bellingham lead the way with 6 medals, Wander Brewing followed up with 3 medals, Kulshan Brewing and Aslan Brewing added 2 each.

Outside of the northwest, Altitude Chophouse and brewery, Laramie Wyoming did very well with 7 medals. Morgan Territory Brewing out of Tracy, California brought home 6 medals.

In the cider world, Last Chance Cider Mill out of Billings, Montana captured 5 medals
